The resolution asking for the investigation of National Chairman Taggart was presented to the convention by Chairman Fowler of the resolutions' committee after the platform had been adopted. E. O. Wood of Flint, former chairman of the state central committee, was on his feet as soon as the resolution had been read, with a motion that it be laid on the table. The motion was unanimously carried. The motion was unanimously carried.

The Resolutions.

The resolutions say:

"Evils under the form of combinations and trusts, which have so shocked the normal conscience of the nation in the last few years are a direct outcome of class legislation by the Republican party conferring privileges on corporations at the expense of the common people. A continuance of such legislation is now threatened by the many bills of like character, as for instance the ship subsudy bill, and inadequate remedial laws enacted by the recent congress, showing that there is no honest purpose on the part of the Republican party to relieve the people from the evils thus cast on them by this unjust legislation. Their affiliations with the classes thus favored make it absolutely impossible to expect relief from republican sources."

The platform then cites the rejection of the propositions of Senator La Follette with regard to railroad legislation as proof of these assertions.

Address of Mr. Hendrix.

Sveaborg did not waver in its allegiance, there is something mysterious about the reports of the actions of the ships which warrants the suspicion that all is not right aboard. Only two ships fired on the mutineers. The others remained on the horizon as if the admiral was not sure that they could be depended upon.

Regarded as a Pirate.

The mutiny on the Pamyat Azova may possibly raise international complications, as in the eye of the law this cruiser, like the Kniaz Potemkine in the Black Sea in the summer of 1905, is a pirate. There is reason to believe that the German fleet has orders covering just such a contingency as this and that it would not hesitate to put an end to the renegade cruiser as a danger to commerce.

Panic at Peterhof.

Address of Mr. Hendrix.

"I am not here to array class against class, but I am here to say that I stand with the common people as against the aggressions of plutocracy. Ten years ago I sat in the national convention of our party in Chicago. I saw there for the first time the clash between the two contending forces, the classes against the masses. In that memorable convention. Democracy received a new baptism of freedom. It faced without fear pomp and power. The cause of the common people triumphed. That struggle was prophetic of the destiny of the Democracy and it stands today, as it always will stand, for the cause of the great wealth producing masses of our citizenship as against graft and plutocracy. The difference between a calloused hand and a calloused heart.

Tribute to Bryan.

When the firing began at Cronstadt Wednesday night there ensued a wild panic in the imperial palace at Peterhof, as the palace lies under the guns of the fortress. All preparations had been made in advance to flee to Tsarskoe-Selo, but the report affoat yesterday afternoon that the emperor and his family actually had fled in the middle of the night was denied later at the chancellory of the imperial household. It was explained, however, that on account of dampness at Peterhof arrangements had been made for the return of the imperial family to Tsarskoe-Selo.

Martial law was proclaimed at Cronstadt during the day, and all day long reinforcements have been landing there from the main land. No one is permitted on the island without a pass and although the correspendent of the Associated Press was thus equipped he was held up and searched upon disembarking from a row-boat.

Tribute to Bryan.

"Long, determined and bitter was that convention struggle. The great masses of our party crying out for justice asked but for a leader. From out of the broad wast came a young man, quiet, poised but for a leader. From out of the broad but for a leader. From out of Laughed at the Soldiers.

The correspondent made a tour of the city and penetrated to the bridge connecting with Fort Constantine. He saw saftors laughing from the windows of the barracks at the beselging soldiers across the way. Everywhere there were heavy patrols on the streets, but otherwise the thoroughfares were almost empty. The people were afraid to venture out.

While passing the arsenal at 4 o'clock in the afternoon the correspondent heard a ragged volley which he subsequently learned had cut short the lives of six pioneers who had been sentenced to death by the drumhead countmartial, which began sitting at II o'clock in the morning. It was declared that the three hundred sailors who had surrendered during the night had been shot earlier in the day, but it was impossible to obtain absolute confirmation of this statement.

"It has been the great influx of gold, the tremendous production of new gold fields and the use of new processes that have given us sufficient time to meet the condition. The Almighty caused to be deposited in the earth this treasure that has been discovered to us. The Republican party never created one grain of it.

WIFE IN SEATTLE SEARCHING FOR HIM.

Seattle, Aug. 2.-E. A. Gage, son of Lyman J. Gage, former secretary of the treasury, committed suicide this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Tourist hotel, corner of Occidental avenue and Main street, by shooting himself through the body with a .38-caliber revolver. He died a few minutes later. The only cause for the shooting which can be assigned was that he was temporarily insane from drinking. His wife, Mrs. E. A. Gage, came here from Chicago last Monday and employed detectives to locate her husband. Friends of the dead man believe he learned of her presence and fearing to meet her decided to end his life. Gage evidently knew that the detectives were on his track as he had registered at the on his track as he had registered at the Tourist hotel under the assumed name of J. W. Gorst. He went there July 29. Before that time he was stopping at the Greystone, where he stayed when he reached Seattle from 'Chicago July 7. Leaving there July 16 he went to one of the other hotels of the city and also registered there under an assumed name. None of his baggage was at the Tourist.

Discovered by Bellboy.

The suicide was discovered by Walter Brown, bellboy in the hotel, who heard the shot fired and rushed into the room, finding the man lying apparently dead. Officer Keefe was then notified and he called up the ambulance. By the time it had arrived Gage was breathing his last. When found he was lying on his back, wifile beside him lay the revolver with which he had ended his life. He had evidently stood before the mirror and placed the gun to his left side. A circular mark on his undershirt showed that he had moved, the muzzle of the weapon from the center of his chest to the left side. He had removed his coat, vest, collar and shoes.

STRIKE IN MEXICO.

Mexico City, Aug. 2.—The strike of machinists in the shops of the Mexican Central railroad continues pacifically. The strikers have presented their demands to the company, and a conference between the machinists' union leaders and the superintendent of motive power is in progress. The Mexican strikers allege that the company took into its employ thirty-three Hungarians, paying them 25 cents a day more than the Americans and 75 cents more than the Mexicans. Officials contend that no discrimination is ever made save on account of efficiency.
